

Breaking out my dance moves...

Prague, Prague, Baroque dancers, the enchanting Chateau Stud Farm in Kladruby Nad Labem. Pics: Sarah Glascott

we were back on the bus for final night in the Czech Republic. Back in Prague, I feel a sense of excitement. I spend my day in the Czech Republic zig-zagging around the city, from the town square and astronomical observatory to the Jewish quarter and up to the castle. Actually, I found myself standing in the same spot I had been at a week ago. This time, as I look at the statues on Charles Square, I feel like I understand about this beautiful country's history. I don't want to leave, but I know I'll return here again. There's still so much more to see, and, to experience.

THE TIME TRAVEL THROWN IN

THE GREAT OUTDOORS

Zip lining

On a busy day, the Limitzero line – the 'la tirolina' in Spain – can accommodate 24-30 people an hour, with each journey costing €15. Your stay in Portugal won't last long. There is a boat on hand in the picturesque village of Alcoutim to ferry zipliners back to Spain after their ride is complete. One can zip at 2,365ft though it is not the fastest zip line in Spain. The zip line in the Malaga province is the longest at 4,711ft long and the line will take you flying across mountaintops within minutes.

You want even bigger numbers... what about the world's longest zip line. Don't let the name 'The Monster' put you off. Spanning 7,234ft and some 1,200ft above the ground, this zipline in Puerto Rico has been named the longest in the world by Guinness World Records. 'El Monstruo,' which translates as 'The Monster' or 'The Beast' takes visitors on an eye-opening 105kph tour high above trees, mountains and rivers. The zip line is located at the 316-acre Toro Verde Nature Adventure Park in the lush mountains of Oro-covis, Puerto Rico. Zip lining is popular here too and the longest overwater zip line in the country is at Castelcomer Discovery Park, Kilkenny. At 984ft and 115ft above the ground you will get a real adrenaline rush. The zip line is accompanied by two new high-rope courses dubbed the 'Octagonal High Ropes Challenge.' Visit discoverypark.ie or call 056 444-0707. Overwater, you say... what about Europe's first zipline over the sea. Situated in Crikvenica, Croatia, near the hugely popular coastal town of Rijeka, the 1,640ft line offers stunning views of the Kačjak peninsula from 100ft up and will reach approximately 65km/h. Or underwater... you can even zip line underground at the world's largest underground course in Wales. In the Llechwedd Slate Caverns, Zip World's ten-line course takes visitors through five caverns, some big enough to fit 75 double-decker buses. It is suitable for children as young as 10 and lasts three hours. So what are you hanging around for? Go off and zip line.

It's easier than ever to drop in on Florida...

VISIT USA! I thought it was an instruction! And I don't have to be told twice.

Our American friends from the Visit USA brand gave us a taster of what to expect this year in the States at their roadshow in Dublin this week.

We are, of course, all very excited about the new Aer Lingus route to Miami in September and we were given a presentation of the best of what Florida has to offer.

After your diarist was moved, of course, because his big head was in shot in front of the camera... it was threatening to obscure the everglades!

Florida, the Sunshine State, is truly blessed and you really will be spoiled for choice.

We know, of course, about Orlando where dreams come true at Disney World and you can enter the Wizarding World of Harry Potter at Universal Studios as well as much, much more.

But we were here instead to enjoy the best of the rest of Florida... Miami with its iconic Ocean Drive and Little Havana and renowned Art Deco architecture.

But if it's good old 'you never grow up' fun you're after you'll be wanting to make the most of their newest building, the funky 1,000ft SkyRise Miami Observation Tower which as well as having a nightclub, event space, amphitheatre and restaurant will also have a flight simulator, and, get this, a bungee jump and a ride with a 50-storey high-speed drop.

I know all about drops and was reminded of what Tampa Bay has to offer when the salsaing Josephine made her pitch which included the joys of Busch Gardens and one Falcon's Fury drop which is the greatest fun you can have upside down. St Petersburg Clearwater I know about only through my parents but which TripAdvisor ranks as having the No.3 and 4 top beaches in the US, Siesta Beach near Sarasota, Florida is tops.

We were also treated to the charms of Michigan which Weekend Travel has also visited and which we were reminded is waiting for its direct Aer Lingus route from Ireland. We'll be the first on the plane when we get the instruction.

MEET you on the road! I did. Our Caribbean friends were also in town so I did some island-hopping. Complete with tales from my trip to Barbados last week. I also bring glad tidings from my Barbados-based Trinidadian friend Jevan and passed them on to Marc, the wonderfully dreadlocked representative from Barbados who was part of the Caribbean delegation here this week. Of course, we were also seduced by the charms of the St Lucians, the Bahamians, the Cayman Islanders and the Anguillians to name just a few. So you want some offers? Tropicalsky.ie has a saving of up to €170pp on seven-night stays at the all-inclusive four-star The Soco Hotel, by Hastings beach departing between August 28 and October 15, if booked before May 31.
